NIH is studying a novel medication for rapid antidepressant response and its effect on memory & attention using neuroimaging.

NIH researchers seek currently depressed persons ages 18-55 to enroll in research studies evaluating how an FDA-approved drug, Scopolamine (for motion sickness) versus placebo can help with depression. In one study, the drug is given intravenously over 7-sessions (inpatient or outpatient), in the other the drug is given by patch over 12 sessions (outpatient). Participants must not be taking medications for three weeks prior to starting the study.

The studies are conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland, and may include brain imaging and attention and memory tasks to help understand the role of some brain chemicals in depression.

There is no cost to participate and travel is reimbursed. Atendemos pacientes de habla hispana.

Al-Qaeda Far From Defeated

A year after the death of bin Laden, payback could still be planned

Washington

A year after the U.S. raid that killed Osama bin Laden, al-Qaeda is hobbled and hunted, too busy surviving for the moment to carry out another Sept. 11-style attack on U.S. soil.

But the terrorist network dreams still of payback, and U.S. counterterrorist officials warn that, in time, its offshoots may deliver.

A decade of wars in Iraq and Afghanistan that has cost the U.S. about $1.28 trillion and 6,300 U.S. troops lives has forced al-Qaeda's affiliates to regroup, from Yemen to Iraq. Bin Laden's No. 2, Ayman al-Zawahri, is thought to be hiding, out of U.S. reach, in Pakistan's mountains, just as bin Laden was for so many years.

It's a complicated, somewhat murky picture for Americans to grasp. U.S. officials say bin Laden's old team is all but dismantled. But they say new branches are hitting Western targets and U.S. allies overseas, and still aspire to match their parent organization's milestone of Sept. 11, 2001.

U.S. officials speaking on condition of anonymity say al-Qaeda is less able to carry out a complex attack like

Most Wanted

After the death of Osama bin Laden, these are five of the top al-Qaeda leaders who pose a clear and continuing threat of an attack within the U.S., according to U.S. intelligence and counterterrorist officials. (AP)

1. Ayman al-Zawahri

Egyptian cleric Ayman al-Zawahri took over al-Qaeda after bin Laden's death. Presumed hiding in Pakistan, Zawahri has released propaganda videos since the raid, exhorting followers to violence.

2. Abu Yahia al-Libi

The Libyan militant, as his name implies, is now the group's de facto No. 2 moving up a notch in hierarchy after the raid. A key propagandist whose video appearances outnumber leader Zawahri.

3. Mullah Mohammed Omar

Leader of the Taliban, Afghan Mullah Omar sheltered al-Qaeda during the Taliban rule and since. Commands militant forces responsible for killing 1,500 U.S. troops in Afghanistan.

4. Nasser al-Wahishi

Once Osama bin Laden's aide-de-camp, Wahishi commands Yemeni affiliate al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula, the group U.S. counterterrorist officials warn is most capable of launching an attack on U.S. soil.

5. Ibrahim Hassan al-Asiri Chief bombmaker for al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula, responsible for building the underwear bomb used to try to bring down a Detroit-bound jetliner on Christmas 2009 and the printer-cartridge bombs intercepted in U.S.-bound cargo planes a year later. U.S. intelligence officials say he has resurfaced recently in Yemen, after months in hiding.

"It's wishful thinking to say al-Qaeda is on the brink of defeat."

— SETH JONES, A RAND ANALYST AND ADVISER TO U.S. SPECIAL OPERATIONS FORCES, SAYING THE GROUP HAS INCREASED ITS GLOBAL PRESENCE AND THE NUMBER OF ATTACKS BY AFFILIATES.

Proof of Death

The world may never see photographic proof of Osama bin Laden's death. U.S. District Judge James E. Boasberg in Washington ruled last week that the Obama administration, under the Freedom of Information Act, would not have to turn over images of bin Laden during or after the raid. "Verbal descriptions of the death and burial of Osama Bin Laden will have to suffice," Boasberg wrote in his ruling on the lawsuit by the public interest group Judicial Watch. (AP)

Sept. 11, and they rule out al-Qaeda's ability to attack with weapons of mass destruction in the coming year.

U.S. counterterrorist forces have killed roughly half of al-Qaeda's top 20 leaders since the raid. That includes U.S.-born cleric Anwar al-Awlaki, killed by a drone in Yemen last September, less than six months after bin Laden's death.

Only a few of the original al-Qaeda team remain, and most of the new names on the U.S. target lists are relative unknowns, officials say.

"The last terror attack was seven years ago in London, and they haven't had any major attacks in the U.S.," says Peter Bergen, an al-Qaeda expert who once met bin Laden. "They are recruiting no-hopers and dead-enders." KIMBERLY DOZIER (AP)

ENSENADA, MEXICO Yacht Mishap Kills 3

A 37-foot Aegean yacht involved in a race off the coast of California and Mexico apparently collided at night with a much larger vessel, leaving three crew members dead and one missing, a sailing organization said early Sunday. It was the state's second ocean-racing tragedy this month. The Newport Ocean Sailing Association said the accident occurred late Friday or early Saturday. (AP)

High winds swept through a beer tent where 200 people gathered outside Kilroy's Sports Bar, near Busch Stadium, after a Cardinals game Saturday, killing one and seriously injuring five others. 7 Killed After Van Plunges 50 Feet

Vehicle flipped over edge of highway onto Bronx Zoo property

New York

An out-of-control van careened across several lanes of traffic on a New York City highway Sunday, then plunged more than 50 feet off the side of the road and landed in a ravine on the grounds of the Bronx Zoo, killing all seven people aboard, authorities said.

Three of the victims were children, fire department spokesman Jim Long said, including girls ages 12 and 10 and a younger girl whose age wasn't known. The others were an 84-year-old man and three women, ages 80, 45 and 30. Long didn't name them.

The van was headed south when it bounced off the median and crossed all southbound lanes over to the guardrail, police said.

A Dangerous Path

The van accident Sunday was the second in the past year where a car fell off the same stretch of the Bronx River Parkway. Last June, the driver of a sport utility vehicle heading north lost control and the SUV hit a divider, bounced through two lanes of traffic and fell 20 feet over a guardrail, landing on a pickup truck in a parking lot. The two people in the SUV were injured. (AP)

It likely flipped over the edge of the highway and landed nearly upside down on zoo property that's closed to the public and far from any animal exhibits, zoo spokeswoman Mary Dixon said.

The wreck was the deadliest in New York City since March 2011, when a tour bus driver lost control and slammed into a pole that sheared the bus nearly end to end, killing 14. VERENA DOBNIK (AP)

Escape Stirs Chinese Activists

Blind man suspected of seeking U.S. aid, whereabouts unclear

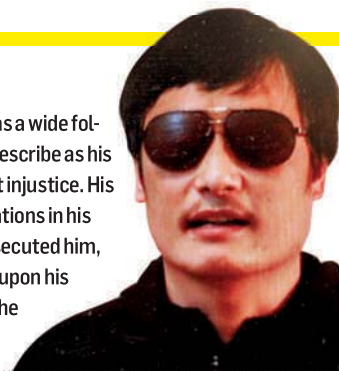

Beijing

The surprising escape last week of a blind legal activist from house arrest to the presumed custody of U.S. diplomats is buoying China's embattled dissident community even as the government lashes out, detaining those who helped him and squelching mention of his name on the Internet.

The flight of Chen Guangcheng, a campaigner for disabled rights and against coercive family planning, is a challenge for China's authoritarian government and, if it's confirmed he is in U.S. custody, for Washington too. Assistant Secretary of State Kurt Campbell began a hurried mission to

A Rallying Figure

Legal activist Chen Guangcheng has a wide following, a testament to what supporters describe as his generous spirit and determination to fight injustice. His exposure of forced abortions and sterilizations in his community so angered officials they persecuted him, sending him to jail for four years and then upon his release confining him to his home, where he was isolated and at times beaten. (AP)

Beijing on Sunday to smooth the way for annual talks involving his boss, Hillary Clinton, and scores of officials.

Though Chen, a self-taught legal activist, hardly seems a threat, officials have reacted angrily, detaining supporters of his and a nephew. China's state-controlled media have so far ignored the story.

Ai Xiaoming, a filmmaker in Guangzhou city, said Chen's escape has had the biggest emotional impact on Chinese rights advocates since jailed dissident Liu Xiaobo won the Nobel Peace Prize two years ago.

“Chen Guangcheng is an example to us,” said Ai. “If a blind person can break out of the darkness to freedom, then everyone can.”

Chen's escape comes as the Chinese leadership is already reeling, trying to heal divisions over the ousting of a powerful politician, Bo Xilai, and complete transition

Political Unrest Grows in Egypt

Cairo

Egyptian lawmakers announced Sunday that they would suspend parliament sessions for a week to protest the military rulers' failure to allow the elected body to appoint a new civilian cabinet.

The step marked a sharp escalation of tension between the country's new Islamist-dominated parliament and the Supreme Council of the Armed Forces, whose relationship has worsened as Egypt's landmark presidential vote nears.

A senior official was quoted Sunday by the state-run newspaper al-Ahram as saying that the cabinet shake-up would be “limited.”

The infighting is also playing

Backstory

Egypt's political disagreement is part of a broader fight to define the country's new power structure after decades of authoritarian rule that ended with Hosni Mubarak's ouster last year. Besides gearing up for the presidential vote slated for May 23, leaders are wrangling over a new constitution. (TWP)

In Haiti, Hotel Boom Signals Progress

Economic growth helps raise hopes for post-quake recovery

Port-au-Prince, Haiti

Glimmers of hope are coming to this capital, such as the Royal Oasis hotel that's rising over a metropolitan area still filled with displaced-persons camps housing hundreds of thousands.

At least seven hotels are under construction or are in the planning stage in Port-au-Prince and its surrounding areas, raising hopes that thousands of investors will soon fill their rooms looking to build factories and tourist infrastructure that will help Haiti bounce back from a 2010 earthquake that officials say claimed 300,000 lives.

The projects add up to more than $100 million in new investment and will generate thousands of jobs. The hotels are the first significant private-sector construc-

Changing Appeal

The planned hotels in Haiti's capital are not aimed at tourists, who avoid gritty Port-au-Prince. Instead, developers are targeting the contractors, foreign-aid workers and diplomats for whom finding a room can be a challenge. Several hotel projects are also under way outside the capital, aimed at what government officials hope will become a growing market for tourists willing to overlook the capital. (AP) tion in Port-au-Prince since the quake. "Cautious optimism and deep skepticism" is how economist Claude Beauboeuf described the boom.

Still, some there say Haiti should first care for the 500,000 people still in makeshift camps.

"It's nice to build hotels to bring tourists, but first you need to think of your citizens," said Ben Etienne, 36, who resides in a camp. (AP)

Metro Fares: Still Tricky

Riders have to learn new rate system as agency raises prices

Transportation

The new Metro fare system that takes effect this summer will be simpler, because it decreases the overall number of calculations involved in setting the cost of a ride. But riders will still spend a long time in front of those vending machine charts.

There will be plenty of different prices, depending on how you ride, how far, and when.

Here are the key changes.

Train Fares

The best part of the whole deal is the elimination of the 20-cent peak-of-the-peak surcharge, imposed on rail travel at the height of the morning and evening rush hours.

But the boarding charge — the basic fare — will rise from $1.95 to $2.10 during the peak periods of 5 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays, and midnight to closing on weekends. After a trip of more than three miles, a distance fare kicks in, up to the maximum fare, which will increase from $5 to $5.75.

The off-peak boarding charge will rise from $1.60 to $1.70. The maximum off-peak fare will rise from $2.75 to $3.50.

Those changes are for riders using SmarTrip cards. For those using paper fare cards, a surcharge of 25 cents will rise to $1. The general manager's original proposal suggested a flat fare for cards of $4 off-peak and $6 at peak.

Bus Fares

The fare for a local or limited-stop Metrobus rider paying with a SmarTrip card goes from $1.50 to $1.60.

Metro says the new train and bus fare hikes are supposed to go into effect on July 1.

MetroAccess Plan

Fares for the paratransit service remain capped at $7. But the amount that riders with disabilities pay is set at twice the amount for an equivalent trip on trains and buses, via the fastest route available. For many MetroAccess riders, their fares will increase simply because the train and bus fares will increase. The Metro board members pledged a further review of the fees. (TWP)

For those paying cash, the fare goes up a dime to $1.80 on the local and limited-stop buses and from $3.85 on the expresses to $4.

Parking and biking

The parking fee at Metro lots and garages will rise by 25 cents. The parking fee at Metro lots and garages will rise by 25 cents. The general manager will have the power to vary the monthly fee for reserved parking at each parking facility, within the range established by the Metro board. That could be $45 to $65.

The charge for renting a bike locker is being reduced from $200 a year to $120.

Types of Passes

- A one-day pass for rail with no time restriction for $14.
- A seven-day pass for rail that can be added to SmarTrip cards. The cost rises from $47 to $57.50.
- A 28-day pass for rail that can be added to SmarTrip for $230. (It's simply four times the cost of the seven-day pass.)
- A seven-day pass available on paper fare cards. The cost rises from $32.35 to $35.
- A seven-day regional bus pass. The cost rises by a dollar to $16.
- A seven-day regional senior/disabled pass. The cost is up to $8. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Md. Court DNA Ruling Appealed

Officials say decision allows criminals to go undetected by police

Baltimore

Maryland's top law enforcement officials are pushing back against a recent Court of Appeals decision that prohibits DNA collection from suspects charged — but not yet convicted — of violent crimes, saying the ruling will allow dangerous criminals to go undetected by authorities.

Police chiefs and prosecutors from the D.C. suburbs to Baltimore County are urging Maryland's attorney general to challenge last week's Alonzo Jay King Jr. v. State of Maryland decision, which found that swabbing criminal suspects for DNA samples after they are charged is a violation of the suspects' constitutional rights.

The ruling, police and prosecutors say, could jeopardize the convictions of 34 robbers, burglars and rapists whose genetic samples were taken after they were charged in separate cases. They also said it will hamper detectives' ability to solve cold cases.

"It really sets Maryland back in the crime fight," said Col. Marcus L. Brown, superintendent of the Maryland State Police.

The case puts Maryland at the center of a brewing national debate that raises the age-old question of how to balance privacy rights and public safety. Federal and state courts across the country have issued mixed opinions on when DNA collection is legal.

State authorities and officials in Prince George's, Montgomery and Baltimore Counties said they plan to stop collecting DNA from charged suspects while they await further court action. They said they are urging Attorney General Douglas F. Gansler to file a writ of certiorari with the U.S. Supreme Court, hoping to overturn the state court's ruling. Washington

We've been called called rude, ugly and over caffeinated — but no D.C. superlative has proved quite as shocking as Friday's addition to the ever-growing list.

Washington, long derided as the land of dowdy pantsuits and Ann Taylor uniforms, was ranked among the most fashionable cities in America.

That's right. Most. Fashionable. No. 9 of 50, to be exact. This ranking comes courtesy of Bundle.com, which tried to determine the fashion-consciousness of cities across the country based on how much their residents spent on clothing.

ion-consciousness of cities across the country based on how much their residents spent on clothing.

The assumption here is that the most fashion-forward people also spend the most on their clothes.

spend the most on their clothes.

Not that we're trying to find a hole in this research or anything.

D.C. got beat by cities including New York (2), Los Angeles (3) and Chicago (6). The No. 1 spot went to Irvine, Calif., where people spend nearly four times as much on clothing as the average American.

Buffalo, N.Y., nabbed the spot at the bottom of the list, but not without good reason, according to Bundle's report: "With so many snow days, it's hard to show off your threads." MAGGIE FAZELI FARD

Wedding Season Redux

For your friends' big days, keep costs low by planning ahead

Personal Finance

Saving money on your wedding day is easy — the courthouse couldn't be a cheaper venue. But how do you save on the weddings of friends and colleagues?

"We found gifts, on average, run around over $100, and the cost is higher if it's a close friend's wedding," said Kristin Koch, Theknot.com senior editor. "On average, people spend $75 on attire and over $300 on travel. Destination weddings can run close to $1,000."

Experts weigh in on how to keep costs down on your friends' big days.

Rent Your Attire

Why buy a dress when you can rent it for as low as 10 percent of the cost of buying? In April, Rent the Runway launched its Weddings Boutique, which helps guests plan outfits for all the bridal events: brunches, showers, rehearsal dinners and the big day. The company also supplies free stylists who will plan outfits based on size, style, color and occasion.

Accessories

We forget that people are so busy judging the bride's dress that they're bound to forget about yours. Dress up something in your closet with vintage or rented accessories. The same goes for men: Most are lucky enough to own a suit they can wear again and again, but investing in vintage ties or using a service such as Tie Society, a Netflix-styled company that rents ties for a monthly fee, will defray costs during a long wedding season.

Inexpensive Lodging

It might be tempting to stay with the bridal party, but you can almost always find a less expensive alternative a few miles away. For lodging, consider using Airbnb.com, a website that matches travelers with people willing to rent rooms or apartments on the short-term. If traveling alone, ask the bridal party for a list of other singles who might be interested in sharing a room.

When to Splurge

The age-old adage of price per plate as a measure for how much to spend no longer applies. "We use a 60-20-20 rule: Spend 60 percent on wedding, 20 percent on shower and 20 percent on engagement party," Koch said. Theknot.com recommends $75-$100 for a co-worker, $100-$120 for a friend and $100-$150 for a close friend or family. But the value of what you buy isn't always the same as the cost. See the next tip.

Game the Registry

Be the first one to sign up for items on a registry, and be strategic. Choose an item you know you can find cheaper elsewhere. There's no rule that just because you sign up for something on a registry that you must purchase it from that store. Get the brand and size details and find it online from a discount retailer. Some stores will update the registry to show the item has been purchased. If not, tell the bride and groom so they can update it. Going online almost always saves money.

Car Rental Options

If you need to rent a car, consider peer-to-peer car-rental alternatives such as RelayRides. For singles, Koch recommends finding a friend or acquaintance before the wedding who is willing to share the rental car. KATHERINE BOYLE (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Walmart.com's Cash Option: Walmart said last week it will allow shoppers to buy items at Walmart.com and then pay for them with cash at any of its 3,800 U.S. stores. It works like this: Customers visit the site to place an order. During checkout, they can select the "cash" option. The shopper then has 48 hours to take the printed order confirmation to a Walmart store. Once the order is paid, the customers can have the items shipped to a store for free or to another address for a fee. (AP)

A Silver Line Stalemate

Political feuding threatens to kill Metro's planned Dulles extension

Washington

After more than 10 years of planning to add 23 miles of Metro rail line in Northern Virginia, the second part of the Silver Line project could be dead before a spade of dirt is turned.

The Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority, Virginia, and Loudoun and Fairfax counties are at a stalemate over pro-union labor deals, concerns about costs and an inspector general's investigation of the authority.

"This project will die if the stakeholders cannot get together and resolve their differences," said Leo Schefer, head of the Washington Airports Task Force, a group of business leaders that supports the Silver Line.

If the project ever does start, it won't start on time.

The Silver Line's first phase, which runs through Tysons Corner to Wiehle Avenue, is now under construction and is expected to be completed in August 2013. The second phase is expected to run from Reston to Dulles International Airport and Loudoun County.

But the airports authority hasn't been able to solicit bids yet for Phase 2, and construction was scheduled to start in January.

The biggest problem, according to Schefer and others: chest-thumping and old-fashioned politics.

"Underlying all of this is party political extremes that are being put ahead of public purpose," said Schefer. "It's become an emotional issue."

Some Virginia lawmakers have said they don't want the right-to-work state to contribute $150 million to the project's nearly $3 billion construction cost because MWA has decided to give potential contractors a 10 percent incentive if their bids favor union labor.

Another complication is that some top players, such as Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood and Virginia Gov. Bob McDonnell, are headed out of office, which would leave a new set of officials to see Phase 2 through to completion.

The effects of political turnover are already being felt: In Loudoun

Under Scrutiny

The uncertainty over the Silver Line is magnified by public perceptions of Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority. Many observers say they have lost confidence in the authority and accuse the board of mismanagement — the first phase of the Silver Line is estimated to be as much as $150 million over budget. DOT's inspector general is conducting an investigation into WMAA's management practices and transparency. The report is expected to be released this spring. "We are actively evaluating whether we can take the project over," Virginia Transportation Secretary Sean Connaughton has said. "These guys are a disaster." Airports authority officials warn that switching the project's responsibility to the state would be a legal mess, but Connaughton said he believes that may outweigh the alternative. (TWP)

County, the Board of Supervisors underwent a sweeping change after the November elections. Many on the nine-member board have questions about the project's cost.

Loudoun's supervisors asked for an extra 30 days to decide whether they will contribute. They have until July 4.

"This has been a frustrating process," said Tom Davis, a member of MWA's board. "The only logical thing we can do is see what Virginia gives us and see what Loudoun does. We really don't have

$200M

The amount of the Silver Line's nearly $3 billion in construction costs that Loudoun County will be billed, plus another $11 million a year starting in 2018 to help subsidize operating costs. (TWP)

much choice."

If Loudoun pulls out, it would likely mean the financing deals have to be renegotiated and other adjustments would have to be made. Many say that would be shortsighted, and Loudoun residents who travel the Dulles Toll Road would end up paying toll increases without having an easily accessible Metro line.

LaHood has called a May 2 meeting of the stakeholders to try to reach an agreement to move the project forward. Many observers say the loss of Phase 2 would have a huge impact.

"This project is too important to fail," said Patricia Nicoson, president of the Dulles Corridor Rail Association.

"If it doesn't go, it says something about the region," she said. "It says we couldn't get it together to do a long-term rail project. That's unthinkable to me." DANA HEDGPETH (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Caps say they need to raise their intensity after Game 1 letdown

The Capitals

There's no doubting that there were breakdowns for the Capitals in Game 1. The bigger focus for the players after Sunday's practice, though, was that they failed to raise their intensity level for the start of the Eastern Conference semifinal series against the Rangers.

"They definitely amped up their level and we were kind of stuck in that first-round intensity, we didn't really ramp it up," Jay Beagle said. "I think it's just a mental thing. After the game we all were sitting here and we knew it. We were like, 'That's not going to cut it, that's not good enough.' I think we'll come back tomorrow with hopefully our best game of the playoffs and show how we can play."

That sputtering level of energy the Capitals, who lost 3-1 on Saturday, felt on the ice was visible to those watching as well — including Capitals owner Ted Leonsis.

"I also thought we looked just a little flat mentally and emotionally," Leonsis wrote on his blog. "It was almost like we had survived such a tough series against Boston. We had decompressed in a few off days and now we were trying to amp back up."

While Washington played well in the first round and won the tightest series in NHL history to knock off the defending Stanley Cup champion Bruins, all it gets them is a spot in the second round. They have to keep churning forward, starting with Game 2 on Monday night.

'You Have to Be Smart on the Ice'

While it's uncertain if Alexander Semin will play a game on the fourth line or if his demotion in Sunday's practice was simply a wake-up call, coach Dale Hunter made it clear that he doesn't want the Capitals taking retaliatory penalties against the top-seeded Rangers. Semin was whistled for two minor penalties in Game 1: a slash in the first period that negated a Washington power play and a trip in the third period as the visitors tried to build momentum in a then-tied contest. Hunter said the Russian winger needs to control his reactions better. "You know something, you just can't do it," Hunter said. "You have to be smart on the ice." (TWP)

"We just got to remind ourselves that the game's not going to be easy. Just because we got past the first round and the Boston Bruins, it's not going to be easy," Karl Alzner said. "The games that we played, we had to work extremely hard to have success at that, and we didn't work as hard as we did last series."

2ND ROUND

Joel Ward echoed that sentiment and said that the Capitals need to refocus and reload in the face of another, arguably tougher, opponent.

"I don't know what to pinpoint, exactly what happened, but I think our desperation level wasn't as strong as it used to be," Ward said. "I don't know whether we kind of collectively as a team thought that it was just going to be the same old, same series. But against a different team, it's a bigger monster — they finished first and that was for a reason."

A World of Difference

Nene is a big reason Wizards have high hopes for next year

The Wizards

Nene for President! Or at least MVP. To hear the Wizards talk, no title would be too lofty, no praise too great for the Brazilian center who played all of 11 games with the team this season.

When the final record is 20-46 — more than 25 games below .500 for the fourth-straight season — the search for silver linings has to begin somewhere. As the players cleared their lockers after the regular season ended, the positive thoughts started and finished with the mention of the 29-year-old center acquired at the trade deadline.

Trevor Booker: "Everybody knew they could trust Nene."

Jordan Crawford: "Nene made it a lot easier on a lot of guys."

Coach Randy Wittman, who might have Nene to thank for saving his job, cited the won-loss record when Nene was in the game: 7-4, including five of the six-straight victories that capped the lockout-truncated season and made everyone feel not quite so embarrassed.

The Wizards have been through this sort of thing before — a promising finish during the season's garbage time after the playoff chances had long ago evaporated. They're always hoping for a carry-over into the next season.

Usually, they don't get it. Maybe this time will be different. If so, Nene will have much to do with it. And so, of course, will John Wall.

"He's a great professional. He wants to win and that's what you need on this team."

— JOHN WALL, ON WHAT NENE BRINGS TO THE WIZARDS GOING FORWARD.

Wall will be entering his third season in 2012-13, and the former No. 1 overall draft pick is growing both as a leader and as a point guard. He averaged 16.3 points, 8.0 assists and 3.9 turnovers this season. Not bad, considering the coach was fired early on. And considering that his teammates included Andray Blatche, JaVale McGee and Nick Young — three players whose games never grew up.

"At times it was tough because you had guys like Nick and JaVale; they wanted the ball a lot and took a lot of shots. It's kind of tough to find what kind of team it was with them," Wall said. "[Now] the energy is more serious, everybody is being on time, taking things more serious, being professional about everything. We're just interacting more as a team." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Parker Sparks Spurs Past Jazz

Pro Basketball

Tony Parker scored 28 points and the San Antonio Spurs won their first playoff opener in four years, beating the Utah Jazz 106-91 in Game 1 of their first-round series Sunday.

Tim Duncan added 17 points and 11 rebounds, helping the Spurs dodge another early playoff letdown. Despite boasting the No. 1 seed again, San Antonio hadn't won a Game 1 in its last six post-season series — including the one that began a shocking first-round ouster last year.

Paul Millsap led Utah with 20 points. The Jazz hung close until the third, when the NBA's top 3-point shooting team began burying Utah with three in a two-minute burst to finish the quarter.

The Spurs have won 11 in a row. Game 2 is Wednesday in San Antonio. (AP)

VOLUNTEER FOR MALARIA RESEARCH STUDIES

In 2010, there were an estimated 216 million cases of malaria worldwide. Currently, there is no effective malaria vaccine.

Healthy adults 18 to 45 years old are needed to participate in a malaria vaccine research study.

This study tests if an experimental vaccine is safe and can prevent infection following exposure to the malaria parasite. If the vaccine does not prevent infection and volunteers develop malaria symptoms, they will receive immediate treatment which is curative.

Study volunteers will be compensated for their participation, estimated to last between 12 and 52 weeks.

To volunteer, call 1-866-833-LIFE (toll-free) or TTY 1-866-411-1010, email vaccines@nih.gov, or visit www.vrc.nih.gov.

Nats Call Up Moore To Boost the Bench

The Nationals

The Nationals on Sunday promoted right-handed slugger Tyler Moore from Class AAA and placed veteran bench player Mark DeRosa on the disabled list. Moore, 25, began playing left field recently but has played only first base throughout his career. Most importantly, he could provide a power threat off the bench.

Moore has consistently become one of the Nationals' best slugging prospects since they drafted him in the 16th round in 2008 out of Mississippi. He has hit 69 home runs since the start of 2010, including seven this year, the most in the entire organization. In 22 games at Syracuse, Moore slugged .597.

Moore started Sunday against the Dodgers and got his first big-league hit after he was a late substitution for Jayson Werth.

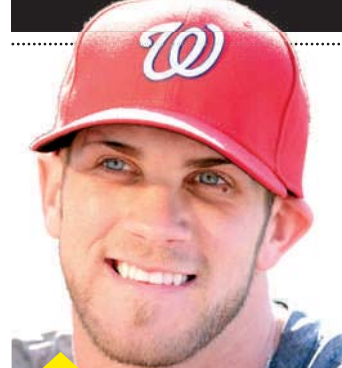

DeRosa will receive an MRI Monday in Washington to examine a strained left oblique. DeRosa won the opening day left-field position with a blistering spring training, but he began the year batting .081, in a 3-for-37 rut. "It's a great start to the year for the Nationals," DeRosa said. "A horrible start for me." (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Orioles Rally to Beat the A's

BALTIMORE'S WILSON BETEMIT celebrates after hitting a walk-off three-run home run in the Orioles' 5-2 victory over the Oakland A's on Sunday. Baltimore scored all five of its runs in the ninth for its comeback win to move six games over .500 for the first time since July 25, 2005.

Pundits and Punch Lines

Hollywood and Capitol Hill break bread at the annual White House Correspondents' dinner

Washington

Hollywood and Washington went on a romantic date Saturday night in the basement ballroom of the Washington Hilton, where more than 2,000 politicians, celebrities, journalists and hangers-on dined on crabmeat terrine and chocolate truffles and belly-laughed at remarks delivered by President Obama and late-night host Jimmy Kimmel during the annual White House Correspondents' Association dinner.

"Last year at this time — in fact, on this very weekend — we finally delivered justice to one of the world's most notorious individuals," Obama said during his after-dinner speech, seeming to allude to the killing of Osama bin Laden. But then a photo of an orange-faced Donald Trump flashed on giant screens in the ballroom. Punch line delivered.

Both Obama and Kimmel took their own shots at presumptive GOP presidential nominee Mitt Romney.

"It's great to be here this evening in the vast, magnificent Hilton ballroom," Obama said, "or what Mitt Romney would call 'a little fixer-upper.'"

Said Kimmel: "When I think 'Mitt Romney,' I don't think Etch A Sketch — I think of Twister. You can't even play

America's Entertainer In Chief

Since last year's dinner, President Obama has burnished his credentials as an entertainer in chief. He slow-jammed the news on "Late Night With Jimmy Fallon." He sang Al Green at the Apollo Theater. He is, after all, counting on Hollywood to funnel money into his re-election campaign. ("I'm going to need you," Obama told a crowd of 1,000 Tinseltowners at a $38,500-a-plate Los Angeles dinner in February.) "He could probably be a comedian himself if he wanted to," Jimmy Kimmel told C-SPAN on Sunday. (TWP)

Monopoly with him, because he keeps putting the dog on the car."

Off the dais, elites mingled with elites. Kate Hudson was next to former Secretary of State Colin Powell and Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.). Sofia Vergara of "Modern Family" and New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie (R) cracked each other up and posed for photos together.

The dinner is perhaps the only venue on the planet where erstwhile presidential candidate Rick Santorum would snap a photo of eternally addled starlet Lindsay Lohan. Which he did. Lohan, whose date appeared to be her attorney, sat at Fox News' table (No. 63) with Kim Kardashian, who's famous because the media keeps her famous.

"I have the nuclear codes," Obama said in a voice-over that lampooned his hot-mike moment with Dmitri Medvedev this month. "What am I doing telling knock-knock jokes to Kim Kardashian?"

The yearly dinner is an opportunity for elected officials to momentarily ignore the business of the people, for journalists to pretend they're stars, for the 1 percent to use second-rate California chardonnay to cleanse their palate of the aggravations of the real world: the deteriorating situation in Syria, for example, and the slowing of both U.S. economic growth and the country's personal saving rate.

All was bubbly at the Hilton, and pundits and politicians seemed to drop their adversarial role-playing — an act that keeps them on air or in office — in favor of buddy-buddiness.

Last year, Obama delivered his well-received speech after approving the mission to kill bin Laden (but before the rest of the world knew about it).

This year, the man who planned that mission, Vice Adm. William McRaven, was virtually ignored at table No. 46, his medals mounted on his tuxedo jacket, as Kardashian, Lohan and George Clooney were mobbed across the room.

2 Still a Punk in Spirit

Even if you don't know British singer-songwriter Nick Lowe, you know his sound. Lowe produced Elvis Costello's first five albums and also wrote Costello's hit "(What's So Funny 'Bout) Peace, Love and Understanding?" He's also a punk from way back — he produced the Damned's "New Rose," which was way ahead of its time and still rocks today. And so does Lowe, though he's melowed into the pub-rock realm recently. Birchmere, 3701 Mt. Vernon Ave., Alexandria; 7:30 p.m., $45; 703-549-7500, Birchmere.com.

'The Pitch' takes an inside look at a world far from 'Mad Men'

AMC 9:00 The high-stakes world of advertising has been part of the appeal of the retro-series "Mad Men" for years now. "The Pitch" takes a documentary-style look at different ad agencies, some very far from Madison Avenue, as they compete against one other weekly to woo potential clients.

Blog Log

“There’s no grand story line or deep, hidden meaning; instead the Harajuku Barbie simply offers up a good time. The ‘Starships’ video isn’t exactly rocket science, it’s just fly — exactly how it was meant to be.”

doesn’t want people to read too deeply into the messages behind Nicki Minaj’s new video released last week.

“Congratulations on your first big-league hit, Bryce Harper. And here’s to you, Mr. Center Field TV Camera Mooner. Congratulations on your 15 minutes of Internet fame, which are running out as we speak.”

— SAMUEL CHAMBERLAIN AT DC.SBNATION.COM pays mock homage to the guy at Dodgers Stadium who made it on camera with his backside exposed as the Nationals phenom marked his milestone Saturday night.

“Justice too long delayed is justice denied. As protesters often put it: ‘no justice, no peace.’ Sometimes, I wonder if some of us really understand what that means. With the L.A. riots now 20 years behind us and the [Trayvon] Martin case before us, it is a good time to consider those words afresh, consider them in light of our noble ideals and too-frequent failings, consider them as if it were you, looking for recourse after justice failed you — again.”

— 100WIZARD.COM offers thoughts on the 20th anniversary of the riots that sparked after four LAPD officers were acquitted in the roadside beating of Rodney King.

“The United States of America is currently at war. In part because of the DC press corps’ soft, friendly relationship with those in power. Glad to see they’ve learned their lesson from that.”

— HAMILTON NOLAN AT GAWKER.COM thinks that the White House correspondents’ dinner “is a shameful display of whoredom that makes the ‘average American’ vomit in disgust.”

“Dan basically gave real talk about how Christians misuse the Bible for their own benefit. As he was talking, the Jesus kids got up and left. ... Nobody was attacked. What Dan said was a real and the truth. ... Wow, I’m siding with Dan Savage. Hell, should be freezing now.”

— WONDER MAN AT SOUTHERN4LIFE.BLOGSPOT.COM defending the syndicated columnist’s words at the National High School Journalist Conference in Seattle on April 13, after Savage said, “We can learn to ignore the [expletive] in the Bible about gay people.” Several students left in protest.

Horoscope

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Focus on what is going on between you and a friend — not on the surface, but underneath where things that really matter are happening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is more going on today than you may understand, but if you follow the instructions given to you, you will surely come out on top.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's not the time for you to make demands; rather, any requests you make will have to be properly timed and worded. Use extra care.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The future is in your hands today, if only for a few precious moments. You must not underestimate the power of a well-timed decision.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have to negotiate carefully with a rival in order to put yourself in a position that is not insurmountable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You will want to keep others in the loop today as you experiment with different ways of doing things that require new creativity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may have to ask around before someone you trust is willing to do you a favor. Once this is done, you'll be off and running.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You have what it takes to inspire others to change for the better. Today, you begin to enjoy the fruits of past labors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may have to wait until someone close to you works through a technological difficulty before you are able to progress as planned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A little relaxation is all you need today before you can power up again and focus on finishing the things you need to get done.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Expect something easy to take a long time today, not because you are ill prepared, but due to external circumstances.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may be tempted to explain yourself in situations that require no explanation. Your best choice is to keep your words to a minimum.

COVER-UPS

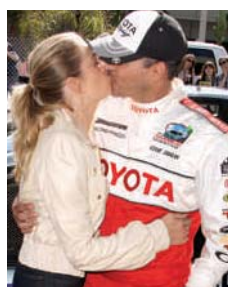

Fabric-Folding Deniers Hold Fast to Weird Theory

Beyoncé tells People Magazine that she was shocked by rumors she was faking her pregnancy, instead using a surrogate to bear Blue Ivy: "It wasn't hurtful, it was just crazy." On the topic of an Australian video that some people thought showed her wearing a prosthetic bump, she said, "It was a fabric that folded — does fabric not fold?" (EXPRESS)

WORD CONFUSION

'Yes, We'd Like to Keep Our 'I's, 'A's and 'E's ... Wait, You Said VOW Renewal?'

LeAnn Rimes and Eddie Cibrian, whose anniversary was April 22, waited until this past Friday to renew their vows in a private ceremony, Usmagazine.com reported. "Renewed our vows today," Rimes tweeted Friday. "It's incredible to thank each other for the past year as husband and wife. Here's to another great year!" (EXPRESS)

Jason Trawick Tries Never To Leave Brit Alone With the Internet ... Oops

Britney Spears tweeted a strange, sort-of-animated video of her two sons with Kevin Federline, Sean Preston, 6, and Jayden, 5, dancing to "We No Speak Americano" by Yolanda Be Cool & Dcup. Sean Preston wields a toy light saber. "We shot a fun video for y'all," Spears writes. "Hint: it involves my boys... more to come, I promise!" (EXPRESS)

"Mariah! Have you been washing dishes with your rings on again?"

EASILY AMUSED

This Never Gets Old!

Mariah Carey and Nick Cannon say "I do" — again. The pair renewed their vows in Paris on Friday at the Eiffel Tower. Spokeswoman Cindi Berger said the couple celebrated with an "intimate ceremony after a romantic dinner at the beautiful Jules Verne restaurant" just after midnight local time. Carey, 42, and Cannon, 31, married in the Bahamas in 2008 after a whirlwind romance that began just months earlier. Carey gave birth to their twins, son and daughter Moroccan and Monroe, last April. The Loser Here Is Dignity

Nadya "Octomom" Suleman seems to feel threatened by the advent of Karla Vanessa Perez, a Mexican woman dubbed "Nueve-Mom" who claims to have nine babies in her womb. Were this true, and all nine are born alive, Perez would break Suleman's record for most live births from a single pregnancy. "No one will ever take my Octo title, I'm in the Guinness Book of World Records!" Suleman told TMZ.com. She also called NueveMom a "fraud" and said "she disgusts me." (EXPRESS)

SERIOUSLY...
WHEN WAS THE LAST TIME YOU VISITED YOUR BANK?

Which would you rather have: fancy branches all over town or a better deal on your mortgage? We thought so.

Our 5/5 Adjustable Rate Mortgage is one of the best deals you can find, adjusting only once every 5 years and available for loans up to $4 million. Plus:

- We pay up to $10,000 in closing costs.¹ You pay escrow and prepaid interest when you use one of our preferred title companies.²
- No origination or processing fees
- Free 90-day rate lock³

For borrowing the way it should be, visit us—online, of course—at PenFed.org/DCmortgage or call 866.386.7211

PENFED 5/5 ADJUSTABLE RATE MORTGAGE

Sample payments on a $450,000 loan

Months	Rate	APR	Payment ⁴
First 60	3.000%	2.918%	$1,897.22
Next 300	2.875%	2.918%	$1,871.31

⁴Payments shown do not include taxes or insurance, actual payments may be greater.

All rates and offers as of April 24, 2012 for new applications only, for a limited time, and subject to change without notice. ¹Closing cost offer is limited to $10,000 per loan. If application is withdrawn or does not close, the borrower pays all applicable fees. ²For New York properties borrowers are required to pay title insurance premiums and may use any title company to obtain the closing cost credit of up to $10,000. Restrictions apply to existing PenFed mortgage borrowers. Other restrictions also apply. Rate is variable and can increase by no more than 2 percentage points every 5 years with a lifetime maximum adjustment of 5% (8.000% for this example). Since the index in the future is unknown, the First Adjusted Payments displayed are based on the current index plus the margin (fully indexed rate) as of the effective date above. ³For purchase transaction, the rate cannot be locked until a purchase agreement has been ratified.
